

Buddhist Action Now

Meeting Notes from February 13, 2022

Present: Milene Zozaya, Kim Mosley, Cathy King, Nelda Adamson

General

- Kim is stepping down from leadership of the group. Instead we will adopt a “hunter-gatherer” approach in which decisions and responsibilities are shared amongst all members.
- We decided we should have a consistent day and time for meetings and that meetings will be one hour in duration. Rescheduled meetings for Saturdays, 1:30-2:30. Scott suggested taking minutes at every meeting so that members not present can have an idea of what transpired and also allow us to review our actions.
- Milene suggested posting a survey to determine what types of projects might be motivating to sangha members at large. Nelda agreed to compile a survey and share with the sangha.
- We will continue our reading of the book “Standing at the Edge.”

Bagging Project

- We discussed the possibility of adding a letter of compassion to each bag. It may be possible to enlist the sanha at large in creating these letters. This would be an opportunity for larger participation in a very concrete way. One idea would be to create letters during the Zen Writing Project.
- Our next bagging activity will be Saturday, February 22. Scott will send out the announcement today (2/13) and will follow up with a reminder in one week.
- Next month’s activity will be March 26.

Standing at the Edge

- We read about the practice of “GRACE.” Next meeting, we will begin on VII: Compassion in the Charnel Ground.
